“Some sort of pressure must exist; the artist exists because the world is not perfect. Art would be useless if the world were perfect, as man wouldn’t look for harmony but would simply live in it. Art is born out of an ill-designed world.”

... Andrei Tarkovsky

Dear Member,

Last couple of months we peeped into Ingmar Bergman’s mastery of filmmaking. Now this month lets experience the Russian master whom even Bergman called as “the greatest of them all”. Andrei Tarkovsky made only seven features but widely regarded as one of cinema’s true masters. Let’s appreciate two of his masterpieces, Solaris and Stalker, both Sci-fi adaptations from novels with enigmatic philosophy.
